Alarm Validation Service

<Co. Name> now offers a beneficial tool that helps to quickly confirm or disregard a signal. We help you create a secure chat group with your trusted contact list so that when our monitoring center receives a signal, members in your group chat can text one another in the chat to figure out what is going on and determine if emergency dispatch is needed.

Americans only answer 48% of their mobile phone calls. They are much more likely to respond to text messages. Using our alarm validation chat service allows your contacts to chat on a secure platform without answering the phone. This results in better communication between contacts for informed decision making, reduces false dispatches, and most importantly, facilitates faster response when needed.
